

Black History Month Grand Rounds 2022

Joanne A. P. Wilson Lecture

The Duke Gastroenterology Division proudly presents John M. Carethers, MD, MACP as the distinguished guest presenter of the 2022 Joanne A. P. Wilson Lecture.

Please join Duke GI Division Grand Rounds during the month of February for the Joanne A. P. Wilson Lecture followed by weekly presentations featuring topics relative to health equity. Email dana.powers@duke.edu for access to the live or recorded presentations.

Informing Race/Ethnicity Modeling for Colorectal Cancer Screening

February 2

5:00 pm – 6:00 pm

John M. Carethers, MD, MACP

C. Richard Boland Distinguished University Professor
John G. Searle Professor and Chair, Department of Internal Medicine
Professor, Human Genetics at the University of Michigan

Structural Racism and Hep C Equity

February 9

8:00 am – 9:00 am

Julius Wilder, MD, PhD and
Jennifer Slepik, MSN, RN, PHN, CNIII
Duke Gastroenterology

Leveraging Community Engagement and Health Policy to Address Health Equity Gaps

February 16

8:00 am – 9:00 am

Andrea Thoumi, MPP, MSc

Kamaria Kaalund, Research Assistant for Health Equity

Duke-Margolis

GI Division-wide/Internal Duke GI Diversity Committee Meeting: Building a Strategic Plan for DEI within GI

February 23

8:00 am – 9:00 am

Julius Wilder, MD, PhD

Duke Gastroenterology

The Joanne A. P. Wilson Lecture was established in 2021 and honors Dr. Joanne A. Peebles Wilson, Professor of Medicine and Gastroenterology at Duke University.