Administrator Path Branch

Exciting new changes to the Administrative Pathway for Fall 2018

The Administrative Pathway of the FDA has been in existence since 2011 and as stated on the website, “administration in academic medicine offers a broad range of opportunities for physicians as leaders of clinical services, academic programs (Division leaders, Vice-Dean roles, etc.) and health system management. Many members of our faculty rise to leadership in a variety of these administrative roles.”

Our hope is that all members of the FDA, regardless of their branch, will progress to leadership roles and contribute to our larger Duke Health community. We will therefore offer the administrative curriculum to all members of the FDA starting in the fall of 2018. This curriculum will include leadership skill development as well as sessions on negotiation and the finances of academic medical centers. We will also facilitate mentoring sessions with members of the FDA and current leaders at Duke.
We hope that these changes to the administrative pathway will better serve all members of the FDA by preparing them for successful leadership roles in their discipline. Stay tuned for more detailed updates in the next few weeks.

Education Scholars Branch

We are resuming the education lab meetings to discuss works in progress and to teach each other about education research methodology. Our first session in March we will discuss promotion for educators. Please bring your CV for review and discussion.
